REC'D DEC 08 2005

Dear Mr. Buckheit:

I am writing with regard to the proposed revisions to the Chapter 49 regulations that set forth the basic rules for teacher preparation, certification and continuing professional development.

Specifically, I urge the State Board of Education to adopt the newly proposed language that revises the former Sections 49.84 and 49.104. Those sections limited the twenty-four college credits acceptable for a teacher to convert their certification from a Level I to a Level II certificate to those "earned at a State approved baccalaureate degree granting institution."

The old language precluded college credits earned at an institution that granted only graduate degrees from being applied toward teacher certification. I was especially concerned about the International Institute for Restorative Practices, a new graduate degree-granting institution in Bethlehem that is hoping to achieve approval by the Pennsylvania Department of Education in 2006 under the provisions of 24 Pa. C.S.A. § 6502(b)(2). As a public school administrator, I believe that college credits from this new graduate school will be of great benefit to educators seeking Level II certification.

Therefore I was pleased to see that the revised language simply calls for "twenty-four credit hours of collegiate study or its equivalent." This new language allows any worthwhile college credits to apply toward teacher certification. I applaud this essential change to the Chapter 49 regulations. Thank you for considering my views.

Sincerely,

Christopher Hey
