I think it's one of the worst ideas anyone has had.

If we learned one thing from the Gulf debacle it's that we don't really know what can happen when we drill deeply into the earth and disturb the environment there.

From what I've been told from reliable sources, wherever this has been done, it's resulted in polluted ground water and a host of other undesirable side effects.

Supporting this seems to serve no one other than the gas companies. We've been pandering to big oil, big gas and big banks for far too long.

It's time we stopped destroying the environment in the name of profits. We've ignored abundant, inexpensive energy sources like geothermal and solar for too long. It's time we stopped.

I cannot support this nor will I support any candidate that does.
