Gentlemen:

The Marcellus Shale drilling is going to be the GREATEST DEBACLE of this century if someone doesn't pull in the reins on this run-away train.

I realize that the economy needs the jobs...but at what price? PRIORITY #1 should be the protection of our clean water, both the drinking kind and the river and stream kind. All one has to do is look back to the last century and see what coal mining did to our water sheds and forest land. Are we trying to repeat that situation in the name of "jobs"? Look at the problems that just occurred over the past twelve months...this situation is spiraling out of control already and NOBODY seems to care and NOBODY is doing anything to curtail it. What's it going to take to FINALLY get someone's attention to say enough is enough and put a halt to this disaster waiting to happen?
