To whom it may concern,

Prior to covid I didn't understand cyber charter schools, and like many others I judged them heavily mainly for taking funding from traditional public schools. With that said, I was wrong.

Because of covid and our B&M school's lack of cyber options we switched to a cyber charter (CCA). The options and flexibility that CCA has to offer have amazed me, I never expected to be so impressed at everything available to my children. I need to note that I came from a top rated school district, and fully expected to return after a year. However regardless of what's happening with Covid we have chosen to stay with CCA. CCA has so much more to offer, I am far more involved in my children's education, and the flexibility to do school in a way that works for my children as individuals is invaluable.

We live in a modern world and B&M schools are no longer the best option for all students. Does there need to be a reformed formula to determine funding to charter schools vs traditional B&M schools? Maybe but not at the expense of defunding cyber schools that have become such an amazing asset to so many.

Thank you for your time
