Governor Wolf needs to stop trying to skirt around the way bills and laws are supposed to be passed. He tries to find loopholes anywhere he can to try to push through what he wants to happen, even if it's not right. Public schools should not have any say how cyber/charter schools operate. The money to fund a child's education should follow the child, period. If the child does not attend that school, they should not be entitled to funding for that child. It goes both ways. Cyber/charters don't get funding from children attending public, why should it go the other way around? We need to keep school choice possible in PA. If a school is performing badly, parents will not use the school and pull to one of the many other great options here in PA. PA needs to allow parents to have choices for their children's education. The public schools are having bus shortages, teacher shortages, and now food shortages. When all the public schools had to close, the cyber/charter schools kept parents afloat who needed it for a good quality education. We need to keep those as an option here in PA. They deserve the funding for the children attending them. Period.
