I support school choice and believe these regulations would promote quality, accountability, transparency and equity in this $3 billion publicly funded sector of public education. We need school choices that raises the bar for success for ALL students while avoiding the abuses of profit-seeking entrepreneurs. Charter schools led by committed educators are serious about quality, accountability, transparency and equity and view these proposed regulations as a step forward in advancing the credibility of the charter sector, which has exploited desperate parents, their children, and all taxpayers for too long.
