

Independent Regulatory Review Commission

07/18/24

I heard about the Amos Miller episode concerning raw butter and wanted to share my concerns. Several years ago my health deteriorated to nearly invalid quality. Raw milk and butter was a component in my recovery. My doctor (who is an MD) denounced all processed foods and prescribed raw, Grassfed, Jersey milk, cream, butter + yogurt. Since I do not eat meat, milk products are important in my diet as the main source of fats and protein. But raw butter was not to be had for any price, so I bought my own cow who gives me more cream than I can use. What am I to do with this bounty? Pour it out? Sell it on the sly like a drug dealer?

How does it make sense that a man may set out a soft drink machine and sell drinks any doctor will agree to be harmful to our health and yet the nourishing milk from his cow ~~he~~ is not allowed to sell? I am not rooting for the unregulated sale of raw milk products, only that it be made possible to sell and buy them without breaking food safety regulations and laws. Please proceed thoughtfully, carefully. And please, if it is possible, give us some legal way to serve raw butter on our homemade bread.

Sincerely,
Ms. L. Martin

Arlene Martin
4893 John Green Rd
Dundee, NY 14837

© The Zebra Company, Inc.

WESTER NY 146

13 JUN 2024 PM 2 1

FREEDOM
FOREVER

Stefanie Smith
2301 N. Cameron St
Harrisburg PA 17110

10-940501

